

CONTENTS

POEMS

JOANNA KLINK	363	Rain, First Morning Two Trees Called
YUXI LIN	367	Self-Portrait as Masturbator
BRIAN GYAMFI	368	The Almost Love Poem of Eloise and Kofi The Revival
GEORGE ABRAHAM	370	Let Him Rest
DEBORAH LANDAU	372	Skeleton Flesh Skeleton Flesh Skeleton
MILLER OBERMAN	377	Theory Two Shabbats with Paul Celan
DARIUS ATEFAT-PECKHAM	382	to touch a ghost Unsafe Surroundings
TYLER RASO	384	Harold Norse says, "Poetry meant being a sissy and worse. A fairy. A friend of mine once asked me why all poets were fairies. Well, I answered, that's because they can fly."
PASCALE PETIT	386	The Lammergeier Daughter Hummer
CHIAGOZIEM JIDEOFOR	388	Self-Preservation Wild
YONGYU CHEN	391	Theory of Mesh
RYAN TEITMAN	394	My Airship Paperweight
JOE CARRICK-VARTY	396	From "sky doc"
TINA CANE	400	Imaginary Dad

I HOPE YOU LIKE BEING HERE WITH ME: THE WORK OF WILLIAM J. HARRIS

HOWARD RAMBSY II	403	Introduction
WILLIAM J. HARRIS	407	For Bill Hawkins, a Black Militant I'm No Martian On Wearing Ears My Friend, Wendell Berry Hey Fella Would You Mind Holding This Piano a Moment Haiku Paper World Why Did It A Guy in a Black SUV City Pastoral You Look Beautiful How We Met Sympathetic Magpies Alzheimer's A Winter Song Nobody Wants to Write an Elegy This Is a Billy Joe Harris Poem The Beauty of Bareness Alice Neel's Late Self-Portrait The Black Card Players: A Collage
WILLIAM J. HARRIS & HOWARD RAMBSY II	432	An Interview with William J. Harris
LAURI SCHEYER	438	The Gift of William J. Harris
CORNELIUS EADY	441	My Kindred—In (Too Brief) Praise of a Joyful Poet
THE EDITORS	444	Acknowledgments
CONTRIBUTORS	445	